Symbols and Notes

Letters A, B, C and D in the variable names correspond to the national, regional, European and municipal levels of government respectively.<sup>1</sup> Please note that a number of questions are available only for some levels of government and for some elections<sup>2</sup>. For more information, see single-election codebooks available on <http://electoraldemocracy.com/voter-behaviour>.

* See the party legend at the end of this codebook. In some elections included in the MEDW project (especially in the French European and municipal elections), political parties formed pre-election coalitions. In such cases, the MEDW single-election datasets usually contain two lists of parties: one based on the pre-election coalitions and the other on individual parties. Subsequently, some party-related variables refer to the former, coalition-based, lists while other party-related variables refer to the latter, individual-party-based, lists. In the aggregated dataset, all the party-related variables were recoded in order that there be a single “master” list of parties by election (ELECID). In elections in which pre-election coalitions were formed, these coalitions constitute the master list and those variables that use lists consisting of individual parties were recoded.<sup>3</sup> When individual parties were attributed scores (e.g. variables Q17_party* and Q30_party*), the newly recoded variables sometimes contain fractions (the average value for all the parties participating in the given coalition).

** In Canada and France, the variable in question refers to the party of the candidate for which the respondent voted (in the first round in France). In Spain and Germany, it refers to the party-list for which the respondent voted (in the party-list ballot in Germany). In Switzerland, when the respondent did not use a party ballot or did not put a party name on the ballot, the variable refers to the party of the candidates for which the respondent cast the greatest number of preferential votes.

*** Randomized survey questions. Q1A, Q1B, Q1C, and Q1D were randomly asked at the beginning or at the end of the pre-election questionnaire (same for PQ1A, PQ1B, PQ1C, and PQ1D for the post-election questionnaire). Respondents were randomly asked PQ5_01 or PQ5_02. The statement “Given the outcome of the election” was randomly added at the beginning of PQ5_2, PQ5_5, and PQ6_4. The variables SELPQ5_2, SELPQ5_5, and SELPQ6_4 respectively discriminate this randomization.

<sup>3</sup> In the case of the Paris municipal election of 2014 (ELECID 22) and variable Q47_1, “Front de Gauche” is recoded as “Party de Gauche” (Party 1 on the master list). Note that this is not a perfect solution since the PCF, another constituent part of the “Front de Gauche”, was running in a coalition with the Socialist Party (Party 2 on the master list).
